(A) Distant Signals.—

I—Cautionary.—There is a region of squally weather in which a storm may be forming.

NOTE.—This signal is hoisted at Port so situated with reference to the disturbed weather that a ship leaving the Port might run into danger during its voyage. If one of the latter mentioned signals is not more appropriate and has not already been hoisted, this signal is hoisted at Arabian Sea Ports also when a disturbance from Bay of Bengal is crossing the Peninsula and may develop into a cyclone after entering the Arabian Sea.

II—Warning.—A Storm has formed.

NOTE.—This signal is hoisted when there is no immediate danger of the port itself being affected, but ships leaving the port might run into the storm.

(B) Local Signals.—

III—Cautionary.—The Port is threatened by squally weather.

IV—Warning.—The port is threatened by a storm but it does not appear that the danger is as yet sufficiently great to justify extreme measures of precaution.

NOTE.—The existence of a storm can often be determined before its direction of motion can be fixed. In this case all those ports which the storm could possibly strike are warned by this signal.

V—Danger.—The Port will experience severe weather from a storm, of slight or moderate intensity, that is expected to cross the coast to the south of the Port.
